

A review of policy governing disability sport in Canada

We have now completed, and are proud to present, the third of three specialized policy scans corresponding to the research priorities of the Canadian Disability Participation Project. This one summarizes policy governing disability sport in 10 provincial, 3 territorial and the federal governments in Canada. The emphasis of the federal government is on high-performance sport and national/international competition, whereas the priority of the provinces and territories is on recreational sport, fitness and physical activity. With partial funding from the federal government, each province and territory is free to express its priorities somewhat differently. To access the full policy scan, click here, and feel free to share with anyone who you think may be interested.

A vision of Canada where people with disabilities enjoy full participation and citizenship, supported by a coherent framework of legislation, regulation and programs.