

Disability studies journals

Publishing your research in disability studies can be challenging – to find the right journal with the audience you wish to reach and a philosophical or ideological stance that is compatible with your work. Several of our research associates have assisted in the development of a list of key disability studies journals – 26 in all; 6 of which are fully open access. Where possible, we have ranked them by Impact Factor; otherwise they appear alphabetically. Information was taken from each journal's website and supplemented when necessary through correspondence with editors. We hope this information will prove useful to our newsletter subscribers!

