

Post-secondary education in disability studies

Effective policy advocacy depends on good-quality evidence developed by a dedicated cadre of scholars working collaboratively with disabled people and disability organizations. In recent years, twelve Disability Studies programs have emerged at post-secondary institutions in Canada – 5 Baccalaureate programs, 5 Masters' programs, and 2 Doctoral programs. Of course there are other programs that offer disability-related courses and content, but these 12 are explicitly focused on Disability Studies, and offer degree programs in Disability Studies.

If you have information that we have missed and that you would like included in this resource, please don't hesitate to let us know.

